

1975 CONFERENCE

Colorado State University, the College of Home Economics, and especially the Department of Consumer Sciences and Housing, cordially invite AAHE members to attend the tenth Annual Conference in tall and terrific Colorado, October 8 - 11, 1975. Plan to come to Denver on October 7, so that early the next day we may see a little of Denver and points of housing interest before our buses roll north to blue sky and the beautifully sprawled "Choice City of Colorado," Fort Collins. There we will entertain, educate, and exhaust you until October 11, when we will give you a choice of joining the "pooped" bus to go straight to the airport and home, or buses which will reach the airport much later via Rocky Mountain National Park, or perhaps Georgetown (an old mining town). We have reserved a whole motel and they've even agreed to add a wing by October just for us!

We have so much to show you, we can only give you a few teasers here: a brand-new home economics building will have just been completed; our $80,000 grey room color lab will turn you green with envy; 50 units of scattered-site single family and duplex public housing may be done (if they ever get construction financing); we have many housing alternatives for the elderly since Colorado is a "retirement haven"; both mobile home and modular housing factories are in operation nearby (at least today); and naturally since the sun shines here all the time, we have been able to build a whole solar-heated and air-conditioned "village" on campus.

Come and have a real "Rocky Mountain High"!
